(54) Abstract Title: System and method for score keeping in a game of golf and a position coded paper therefore

(57) When scoring a game of golf, a player is equipped with a course guide printed on a position-coded paper provided with coordinates readable by an electronic device. The player indicates/marks on the course guide each stroke he makes by marking on the paper the position of his ball after each stroke using the electronic device. After a completed game the data regarding the golf game registered by the electronic device is processed in a computer and output in a format preferred by the player. The player can also indicate the club he uses for each stroke as a separate input in the course guide printed on a position coded paper. Hereby he can receive statistics of interest after completing the golf game.
