The ornamental design for a cabinet panel detail, as shown and described.
with the portions of the cabinet that form no part of this embodiment of the claimed cabinet panel detail design being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 11 is a perspective view showing a fifth embodiment of my new design incorporated into a door of a wall cabinet, with the portions of the cabinet that form no part of the fifth embodiment of the claimed cabinet panel detail design being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 12 is a front elevation view of the door shown in FIG. 11 with the fifth embodiment incorporated therein, with the portions of the door that form no part of the claimed design being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 13 is a view of the section 13-13 of FIG. 12.

FIG. 14 is a view of the section 14-14 of FIG. 12.

FIG. 15 is a back elevation view of the door shown in FIG. 12, again with the portions of the door that form no part of the claimed design being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 16 is a view of the partial section 16-16 of FIG. 12. The right side, left side, top, and bottom views are not visible when the wall cabinet is in use and do not form a part of the claimed design.

FIG. 18 is a front elevation view showing a seventh embodiment of my new design incorporated into a cabinet door, with the portions of the cabinet door that form no part of the claimed design being shown in broken lines. This embodiment includes portions formed from a transparent material, as shown in the rear elevation view of FIG. 21.

FIG. 19 is a view of the section 19-19 of FIG. 18.

FIG. 20 is a view of the section 20-20 of FIG. 18.

FIG. 21 is a back elevation view of the door shown in FIG. 18 with the seventh embodiment incorporated therein, with the portions of the door that form no part of the claimed design again being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 22 is a view of the partial section 22-22 of FIG. 18. The right side, left side, top, and bottom views are not visible when the cabinet door is in use and do not form a part of the claimed design.

FIG. 23 is a front elevation view showing an eighth embodiment of my new design incorporated into a cabinet door, with the portions of the cabinet door that form no part of the claimed design being shown in broken lines. This embodiment includes a non-transparent material, as shown in the rear elevation view of FIG. 26.

FIG. 24 is a view of the section 24-24 of FIG. 23.

FIG. 25 is a view of the section 25-25 of FIG. 23.

FIG. 26 is a back elevation view of the door shown in FIG. 23 with the eighth embodiment incorporated therein, with the portions of the door that form no part of the claimed design again being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 27 is a view of the partial section 26-26 of FIG. 23. The right side, left side, top, and bottom views are not visible when the cabinet door is in use and do not form a part of the claimed design.

FIG. 28 is a perspective view showing a ninth embodiment of my new design incorporated into a floor cabinet, with the portions of the cabinet that form no part of the ninth embodiment of the claimed cabinet panel detail design being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 29 is a front elevation view of a door of the floor cabinet shown in FIG. 28 with the ninth embodiment incorporated therein, with the portions of the door that form no part of the claimed design being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 30 is a view of the section 30-30 of FIG. 29.

FIG. 31 is a view of the section 31-31 of FIG. 29. The right side, left side, and back elevation views and the top and bottom views are not visible when the floor cabinet is in use and do not form a part of the claimed design.

FIG. 32 is a perspective view showing a tenth embodiment of the design which is a mirror image of the ninth embodiment, it being understood that all other surfaces are mirror images of the corresponding surfaces of the ninth embodiment. The tenth embodiment is shown incorporated into a floor cabinet, with the portions of the cabinet that form no part of the tenth embodiment of the claimed cabinet panel detail design being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 34 is a right side elevation view of a side panel of the floor cabinet shown in FIG. 33 with the eleventh embodiment of the design incorporated therein, with the portions of the cabinet that form no part of the claimed design being shown in broken lines.

FIG. 36 is a view of the section 36-36 of FIG. 34. The left side, front and back elevation views and the top and bottom views are not visible when the floor cabinet is in use and do not form a part of the claimed design; and

FIG. 37 is a perspective view showing a twelfth embodiment of the design which is a mirror image of the eleventh embodiment, it being understood that all other surfaces are mirror images of the corresponding surfaces of the eleventh embodiment. The twelfth embodiment is shown incorporated into a floor cabinet, with the portions of the cabinet that form no part of this embodiment of the claimed cabinet panel detail design being shown in broken lines.
