⑤④ Device at a container.

⑤⑦ Container consisting of a bottom (1), in principle comprising a pallet, and a cylindrical member (2) standing thereon and a bag (3) arranged therein. In the bottom there is a hole (13) sealed by a door (14). When the door (14) is pulled out the bag (3) is pressed down into the opening and when the door is pushed in the bag will be perforated after which the contents can be dosed to a desired degree. The cylindrical member (2) of the container consists of a straight piece of board, which has been perforated at its ends. Moreover, at the joint there is arranged an interior plate profile provided with bolts extending through the holes to an outer plate profile and through holes therein, after which nuts press the two plate profiles against each other.
