(54) Title: METHOD OF CONFIGURING ROUTERS USING EXTERNAL SERVERS

Fig. 3

(57) Abstract: A system comprising a router, a user device, and an external server is disclosed. The router includes a series of configuration templates and is configured to forward requests from the user device to the external server and to direct responses from the external server to the user device. The said responses comprise the name of one of the templates with which the router is to be configured.
