(54) Title: CABLE-CLAMPING DEVICE

(57) Abstract: A cable-clamping device (1), including a base (2) having a through seat (3) for accommodating electrical cables, for example electrical power cables of a household appliance; and a clamping element (4) progressively insertable in the seat (3) in a transversal direction with respect to the same defined in use by an axis (A) laying on a longitudinal symmetry plane of the clamping element, for clamping in use the cables against a bottom wall (5) of the seat; the clamping element (4) being delimited between a first (6) and a second (7) end by a first (8) and a second (9) lateral flank essentially parallel to the longitudinal symmetry plane and by an upper face (10) essentially perpendicular to the lateral flanks, the first and the second ends being provided with coupling means to the base (2) including snapping/retaining means (11) made at the second end (7) and an insertion seat (12) for at least one removable clamping element; wherein the insertion seat (12) is defined by at least one first recess (13) open on the first lateral flank (8), at least one second recess (14) open on the second lateral flank (9) and made immediately adjacent to, and flush with, the first, and by at least one slot (15) made transversally through the first end, in direction essentially perpendicular to the lateral flanks.
