(54) Title: AUTOMATIC SETTLEMENT OF USER ACCOUNT WITH CREDITOR FROM TRANSACTION KIOSK

(57) Abstract: A transaction kiosk (104) collects cash (120) from a user (102) and then electronically negotiates with the user's creditor (126) to settle a balance on an account with the creditor (126). The bank (136) recognizes the cash (120) deposited in the transaction kiosk (104) by the user (102) as security for the settlement amount. The cash (120) deposited in the transaction kiosk (104) is considered a cash asset owned by the bank (136) and available to satisfy debitor claims. A transaction processor (122) brokers the transaction between the user (102) of the transaction kiosk (104), the surety bank (136), and the creditor (126).

Form PCT/ISA/210 (continuation of first sheet (2)) (April 2007)
This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to from a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

Group I: claims 1-33 are directed to a method of allocating money comprising validating a cash deposit; securing the deposit at the transaction location; and transmitting data including the first amount to the bank to update a record of a second amount of cash available to the bank to satisfy depositors' claims by including the cash deposit with the second amount.

Group II: claims 34-38 are directed to a system comprising a transaction kiosk for access by the debtor comprising a cash collection device; a cash value validation device; and a vault collected cash; a transaction processor system connecting the kiosk with a bank; a creditor system connected with the transaction processor system that facilitates communications between the transaction kiosk, the bank, and the creditor system to settle the account of the debtor with the creditor.

The inventions listed as Groups I and II do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because under PCT Rule 13.2 they lack the same or corresponding technical features for the following reasons:

Group II does not include the inventive concept of a method of allocating money comprising validating a cash deposit; securing the deposit at the transaction location, and transmitting data including the first amount to the bank to update a record of a second amount of cash available to the bank to satisfy depositors' claims by including the cash deposit with the second amount of Group I.

Group I does not include the inventive concept of a system comprising a transaction kiosk for access by the debtor comprising a cash collection device; a cash value validation device; and a vault collected cash; a transaction processor system connecting the kiosk with a bank; a creditor system connected with the transaction processor system that facilitates communications between the transaction kiosk, the bank, and the creditor system to settle the account of the debtor with the creditor of Group II.

None of these technical features are common to the other group, nor do they correspond to a special technical feature in the other group. Therefore, unity of invention is lacking.
