(54) Title: METHOD AND SYSTEM FOR DELIVERING PRESENTATIONS

(57) Abstract: A method and system are disclosed that connects an end user, a specialist and a host website, via a network, so that the end user can view at least one presentation. The specialist provides information relating to the end user to the host website. The host website produces a product such as a CD, URL, and/or recordable medium that contains an ID based on the information. Such an ID can be associated with at least one presentation. In response to the ID in the product, the end user can access the host website, via the network, to view the at least one presentation.
