

T. KEHOE.

Gloves.

No. 133,319.

Patented Nov. 26, 1872.

Fig. 2.

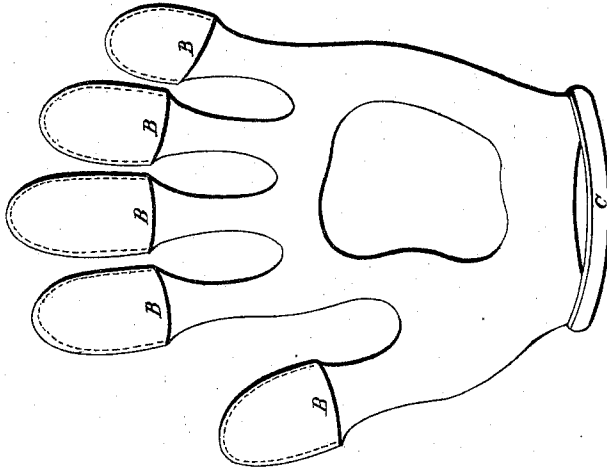

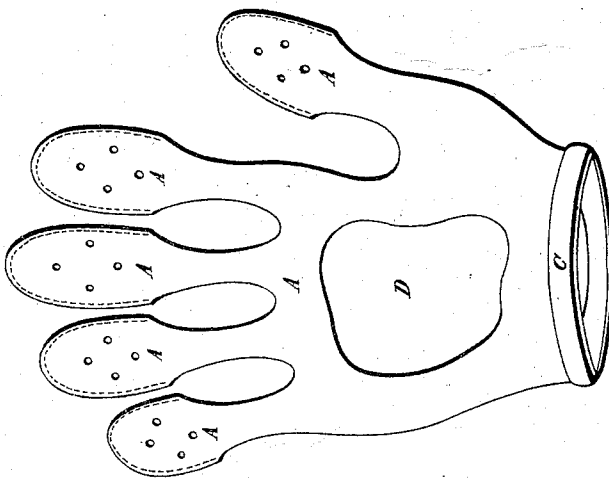

Fig. 1.

WITNESSES:

*A B Smith
& W Beardsley*

INVENTOR:

Timothy Kehoe

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.

TIMOTHY KEHOE, OF POUGHKEEPSIE, NEW YORK.

IMPROVEMENT IN GLOVES.

Specification forming part of Letters Patent No. 133,319, dated November 26, 1872; antedated November 25, 1872.

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that I, TIMOTHY KEHOE, of Poughkeepsie, in the county of Dutchess and State of New York, have invented certain Improvements in Skeleton Gloves for the protection of the fingers and thumb of the human hand most exposed to wear by brick-layers and others, of which the following is a specification:

The nature of my invention is fully represented in and by the accompanying drawing, to which reference is made, like letters indicating like parts.

A A, Fig. 1, represent that portion of my skeleton glove which applies to the back of the hand, fingers, and thumb. This portion may be cut very light and airy by forming openings, as shown at D and above A A, but must be made of full width at the ends of the fingers, as shown. I usually cut this portion of the glove from and in one piece of leather, but it may be made of several pieces if thought best. B B, Fig. 2, represent the pads which cover the balls of the fingers and thumb, and being all the covering afforded to the inside of the hand. These pads B are sewed or laced to the ends of the finger-back pieces A, and thereby form the ends of the fingers, as shown, being cots into which the ends of the fingers and thumb are thrust for protection from wear and injury. C represents the wrist-band, which is the main means used for securing the glove upon the hand. This may be made of any elastic material, or secured by means of buckle or other device.

Having thus fully described my invention, what I claim is—

A skeleton glove, A A, provided with pads B B, substantially as hereinbefore described, and for the purpose set forth.

TIMOTHY KEHOE.

Witnesses:

A. B. SMITH,
L. B. SACKETT.