(54) Title: METHOD AND SYSTEM FOR MANAGING CONTENT IN A CONTENT PROCESSING SYSTEM HAVING MULTIPLE CONTENT DELIVERY NETWORKS

FIG. 1

(57) Abstract: A communication system (100) includes a first content delivery network (280), a second content delivery network (280) and a communication network (132). A content management system (221) generates a content delivery network identification and associates the content delivery network identification with content. A content distribution system (260) selects the first content delivery network or the second content delivery network in response to the content delivery network identification to form a selected content delivery network. The content distribution system (260) communicates the content to the selected content delivery network (280) in response to the content delivery network identification. The selected content delivery network (280) communicates the content to a user device (110, 112) through the selected content delivery network (280) and the communication network (132).
