Reflectionless filters, as well as a method for designing such filters is disclosed. The filters function by absorbing the stopband portion of the spectrum rather than reflecting it back to the source, which has significant advantages in many different applications.